HELLO SPORTSFANS,

Perhaps you haven't heard, but today is election day. Can't wait till this crap is over, signs come down, political ads end, and revert back to prescription drug ads...

Thankfully cooler weather is coming, so that's nice, for a few days at least.

Football season is over. Aggies once again break my heart. It's officially Hockey season.

Christmas is 52 days away, so start freaking out about that.

Here are a few housekeeping items of note:

-Caruthers/Fleetway/Teakwood road replacement is well underway and going well.

-Working on another LTC Handgun class before Christmas; stay tuned.

-Traffic and parking issues continue in front of and around Hunters Creek Elementary. We are working with the Principal and PTA to clean up the situation. An easy fix is to just use the carpool line, as that's what it's designed for!

-Twinkle Light Parade in the works, always a great time, stay tuned.

Only a few hours left to vote, and if you haven't, go do it!

Harris County just passed the largest property tax increase in our history, a month before an election... obviously, they don't care at all about higher taxes or controlling their out-of-control spending! Our fantastic Commissioner Tom Ramsey voted against it, but the others did not, and here we are....County Judge and Commissioner are on the ballot, along with many candidates/offices that directly impact our lives tremendously, so vote accordingly.

City of Houston missed their budget shortfall by 4x! They are in a 4x deeper hole than they thought.....We, on the other hand, are fully funded with the lowest tax rate in the Region. We don't spend what we don't have. Too bad the City and County can't follow our lead. Pitiful. We don't pay Houston city taxes, but obviously Harris County taxes affect us.

Congratulations to the Memorial High Mustangs for winning the State Championship in Tennis and winning the District in Football!

OK, that's all I got,
Happy Thanksgiving in a few weeks,
Jim Pappas
